The South Americans were fighting for independence at that day, and the Post asnounces that Bollyan had gained a great victory over the Spaniards.

"Imprisonment for debt" was one of Kentucky's laws then, as "Mr. Thruston" had reported a bill in the Legislature on the subject. He also reported a bill making an appropriation to "furnish the Louisville Hospital." A bill passed the Legislature, about that time, to fix the value of lands between the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers, which was done at $50 for 100 acres of land. Ben. Hardin, Ross. Wickliff, of Fayette, and Judges Rowand Robertson were in the Legislature that year. There were other sensible men in that body, too, for we see by the ture that year. There were other sensible men in that body, too, for we see by the Post that a movement had been made "to remove the capital from Frankfort to a more eligible location."

The Legislature adopted a resolution at that day, protesting against some decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, which, it was claimed, encroached on our State rights. The resolution requested our representatives in Congress to use all proper means to procure from that body such modifications of the Supreme Court and other reforms as would "tend to give repose to the people of Kentucky and secure the rights of the States from turther encroachments."

The "old and new court" question was up in the Legislature, but was debated calculy.

A year or two sites wards it blazed out in all the fury of excited human passions, and deep and rancorous was the feeling throughout the State. A resolution passed the legislature inviting General Lavanette to visit Kentucky.

The Chicago Board of Aldermen is not a great deal better, it would seem, than the rest of the city. The Times of Monday gives us this hint as to what it is: "If the newspaper reporters were not the kindest-hearted people in the world such would be about the report that would come to the people of all the meetings of our city fathers. If the debates, or rather the jing-jangle," of these meetings were reported evolution of literatus they would be found to be full of bed grammas, slang, proianity, personal abuse and senseless confessions of ignorance, corruption, care cleames, irresponsibility and neglect. If the greater part of the proceedings were not so studiously eliminated, much to the crustal would be such as to disgust the people more than ever with the men whom they elect as their servants and who afterward.

WALTHAM

WATCHES

The extensive use of these watches for the last fifteen years by Rallway Conductors. Engineers and Expressmen, the most exacting of watch-wearers, has thoroughly demonstrated the strength, steadiness, durability and accuracy of the Waitham Watch. To actisfy that class in all these respects, is to decide the question as to the real value of these time-keepers.

More than 450,000 of these watches are now speaking for thesesofters in the pockets of the people—a proof sind a guarantee of their superiosity over all others.

The superior organisation and great extent of the Company's Works at Waitham, enable them to produce watches at a price which renders competition futile, and those who buy any other watch merely pay from 25 to 50 per cent. more for their watches than is necessary.

A PRINSTLYMIA poet, who wrote in somo tender lines addressed to his love. "We will hellow her grave with our team," was surprised at a call from Heinrieits's brother next morning, armed with a club, and who extended a stirring lavitation to him to come down and have his lead broken, which he declined. The local paper had made the line read: "We will harrow her grave with our steers."

The Louisville Couriem-Journal. explains the fact that George Wilkes has tarned his pen against Grant, by assuming "that he has thus failed to resize his dream of becoming Vestrinary Sungson to the President." Wilkes's mistake was in mistaking the humble duties of a cochman for the duties of a stateman.
